

Arkansas Tech University, Behavioral Sciences Department

Program Information
Program Name	Arkansas Tech University, Behavioral Sciences Department
General Description / Special Programs	The Behavioral Sciences Department offers unique opportunities to the student of human behavior. The department houses major programs of study in Psychology, Rehabilitation Science and Sociology and associate programs in Ozark-Ouachita Studies and Criminal Justice. In addition, a minor program are available in Anthropology. This multi-disciplinary character forms the unique strength of the department. While the identity of each discipline is maintained and a thorough grounding in one major is stressed, the student has the opportunity to examine, compare, and contrast the approaches of the other disciplines.
