

Cornell University, Department of History of Art and Visual Studies

Program Information

Program Name	Cornell University, Department of History of Art and Visual Studies
General Description / Special Programs	The Department of the History of Art at Cornell University makes possible the study of areas traditionally central to the discipline such as Ancient, Medieval, and Renaissance art, and emphasizes the integration of recent fields of theory and research to the study of global visual culture. A graduate student in the field of History of Art, Archaeology and Visual Studies may concentrate on archaeology with appropriate field members. Presently we emphasize archaeology in the following areas: Ancient, Near Eastern, Classical and Southeast Asian art. Students working in these areas are encouraged to organize their programs with faculty members in other related fields, such as Anthropology, Classics, and Medieval Studies.
