<td>General Description / Special Programs</td>
<td>Emphasis is on well-rounded training in anthropology with a number of options for special concentration that students may choose. In conjunction with the Milwaukee Public Museum, the department has a Museum Studies Certificate option. There is also an option for a joint Anthropology/Library and Information Sciences Master's degree. There are options for certificates in Forensic Sciences and Celtic Studies at the undergraduate level. The Archaeological Research Laboratory maintains a cultural resource management program, an archaeology field school, and facilities for specialized analysis in lithics, ceramics, osteology, soils, microbotanical, and faunal remains. The biological laboratories have research facilities for forensics, primate genetics and anatomy. The library also maintains access to the Human Relations Area Files.</td>
