Students take courses in ethics, proposal writing, methods, theory, and statistics. Because this is an interdisciplinary degree, at least 6 hours of coursework are from other disciplines. |
| Research Facilities | Research facilities include the Cultural Anthropology Laboratory and the Center for Archaeological Studies (director Dr. Todd M. Ahlman), the Center for Art and Symbolism in Ancient America (director Dr. F. Kent Reilly), and the Forensic Anthropology Center at Texas State (director Dr. Daniel Wescott). |
| Support Opportunities | |
| Library Resources | |
| Internships Available | Undergraduate and graduate majors can earn credit by completing internships or externships, which provide students with an opportunity to practice the research skills learned in classes and to experience how applied research is conducted in non-academic settings, something that cannot be simulated in an academic environment. |
